BEFORE and AFTER Houston Homeopathy Method Autism Treatment Evaluation Checklist (ATEC)

The Autism Treatment Evaluation Checklist (ATEC) was designed to assist parents, physicians and researchers to evaluate virtually any treatment for autism. The Autism Research Institute (ARI) developed this convenient no-cost Internet scoring procedure that will calculate four subscale scores (Communication, Cognition, Sociability and Behavior) and a total score from the ATEC. The scores are weighted according to the response and the corresponding subscale. The higher the subscale and total scores, the more impaired the subject.<sup>1</sup>

The internal consistency of the ATEC was examined by conducting a split-half reliability test on over 1,300 completed ATECs. The internal consistency reliability was high (.94 for the Total score).<sup>2</sup>

Three studies have been published that have shown the ATEC to be sensitive to changes as a result of a treatment<sup>3,4,5</sup>:

The ATEC scores for the clients that formed the basis for this presentation are shown on the following pages.
